JOBLESS RIOT IN LONDON.

DISGRACEFUL SCENES.

MOUNTED POLICE CALLED OUT.

(Reuter's Special Service).

London, Dec. 15.
Disorderly scenes were witnessed outside the London County Hall this afternoon when a large procession of unemployed arrived for the purpose of sending a deputation to the London County Council.

Traffic along all approaches to Westminster Bridge was dislocated, and it was found necessary to employ mounted police before control of the mob could be obtained and the demonstrators dispersed. One of the policemen was dragged from his horse by rioters in the course of the disturbance.

BOSTON BANK FAILURES.

OVER $886,000,000 INVOLVED.

A TRAGIC YEAR.

Boston, Dec. 15.
Nine Massachusetts banks closed their doors to-day, following the example of the Federal National Bank of Boston, which has been obliged to announce a suspension of payments. The total deposits involved by to-day's "failures" amount to $886,335,000.

There have been over 1,200 bank suspensions in the United States since the beginning of the year, involving deposits totalling about nine hundred million dollars ($180,000,000). The only bright side of the picture lies in the fact that the closing has been only temporary in the case of some two hundred of the affected banks, with deposits totalling 120 million dollars.—Reuter's American Service.

NEW SPANISH CABINET.

CHANGE IN FOREIGN OFFICE.

Madrid, Dec. 15.
A new Cabinet has been formed with Don Manuel Azana (who succeeded President Zamora in the Premiership) as Prime Minister and Minister for War. The Portfolio of Minister for Foreign Affairs has been offered to Senor Zulueta in place of Senor Lerroux.—Reuter.

SHIP'S OFFICER. MISSING.

ANXIETY FELT FOR SCOTSMAN.

Some concern is felt as to the whereabouts of Mr. D. F. Fairfax, Chief Officer of the s.s. On Lee, who has been missing from his ship since Saturday. The steamer is at present berthed at the Kwong Fook Loong shipyard at Cheungshawan, undergoing overhaul, and Mr. Fairfax left her on Saturday for the purpose of going ashore. Nothing has since been heard or seen of the officer, and accordingly a report has been made to the police by Captain J. Mitchell, the master of the vessel. Mr. Fairfax, who is 80 years of age, is a Scotman.

HOSPITAL DISASTER.

INMATES TRAPPED IN PRINCE EDWARD IS. FIRE.

(Reuter's Special Service).

London, Dec. 15.
Three inmates of a large hospital at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, were killed last night, when fire broke out in the building and quickly reduced the premises to ruins. A harrowing description of the terrible scenes accompanying the tragic affair is contained in brief messages from Prince Edward Island, which is a large island off the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia coasts, in the large bay formed by these centres.

One of the inmates of the hospital, which was destroyed, was burned to death when he found himself trapped in the blazing building.

Leapt to Death.

Two others, similarly trapped, made a desperate bid for their lives, leaping to death from an upper story. The hospital contained over three hundred mental patients. They managed to escape the blaze, but were obliged to dash out of the building into the bitter cold in their night-clothes.

Mr. Yoshizawa Accepts.

Leaving For Tokyo Shortly.

SUGGESTION BY SOVIET.

Paris, Dec. 15.
Mr. Yoshizawa, Japanese Ambassador to France, has cabled his acceptance of the Foreign Office portfolio in the new Japanese Cabinet.

He is proceeding to Japan, via Siberia, very shortly, but the exact date of his departure has not yet been fixed.

Little or no change in Japanese foreign policy is predicted by French observers of Far Eastern politics, in view of Mr. Yoshizawa's acceptance of the Foreign Office.

Le Temps characterizes Mr. Yoshizawa as "a diplomat who has the soundest conception of Sino-Japanese undertakings to the League of Nations and who has showed the widest possible spirit of conciliation in a singularly delicate negotiation."

A telegram from Riga states that a suggestion for a Far Eastern Round Table Conference, in which the Soviet Government is willing to participate, is made in a resume of the Soviet's attitude to the Manchurian problem, published by the Commissariat for Foreign Affairs to-day.

It is understood that the resume will be handed to Mr. Yoshizawa when he arrives in Moscow on his way to Tokyo to take up the post of Foreign Minister.—Reuter.

London, Dec. 15.
Mr. J. H. Thomas, the Dominions Secretary, has cancelled his plans for a trip to South Africa, owing to pressure of Government business.—British Wireless.

CRACK AIRCRAFT CRASHES.

FAIREY-NAPIER IN MISHAP.

RECORD ATTEMPT POSTPONED.

London, Dec. 15.
After a trip from Egypt comparing curiously with the speed and precision of the outward flight, the Royal Air Force long-range monoplane, specially constructed for an attack on the world's long-distance flight record, met with mishap to-day.

The machine, which was built by the Fairey Aviation Works and which is equipped with a Napier motor, was on the final stage of its homeward journey after a successful nonstop trial flight to Egypt.

Owing to bad weather, the pilots were obliged to make a forced landing at Saffron Walden. The manoeuvre was carried out with partial success, but when all seemed well, the giant craft turned over on its nose and suffered some slight damage.

The pilots escaped unhurt and it is not thought that the repairs will occasion any trouble. The projected attempt on the flight record, scheduled for December 22, has been postponed, however.

The machine will be taken to the Fairey Works for overhaul and repairs to-morrow.—British Wireless.

DECREASE CHECK.

UNEMPLOYED FIGURES GO UP.

London, Dec. 15.
An increase of 5,297 in the total number of persons unemployed is recorded in the latest weekly return of the Ministry of Labour. Of the total of 2,627,324 out of work, 438,248 are women and 109,442 are boys and girls.—British Wireless.

£2,000,000 A DAY ON ARMS.

DR. LANG APPEALS TO WORLD.

London, Dec. 15.

A large congregation, including the representatives in London of all European countries, the Prime Minister and his Cabinet colleagues, and representatives of all branches of public life, commerce and industry, to-day attended the National Service for world disarmament at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The Archbishop of Canterbury said that the civilised world was approaching one of the turning points in its history. He described next February's Disarmament Conference as the most momentous assembly since the Peace Conference.

The late War had shown that great armaments could only lead to war, yet the world was spending on them no less than two-million pounds daily.

Britain had already made more substantial reductions in armaments than any other country, and many thought she had reached the lowest point consistent with her safety and obligations.

Britain's Problem.

This very fact created a difficulty which her representatives at Geneva would have to face. It might not be possible for them to accept some general reduction by a fixed common percentage. But within classes of armaments there were possibilities of reduction.

Britain's representatives must be asked to strain every nerve to bring about at least a true and honest beginning in general disarmament.

Pact of Paris.

Sixty-one nations had bound themselves by the Pact of Paris to renounce war as an instrument of national policy. Were not their solemn pledges enough to banish the fear of which armaments were the symptom? They were the symptom also of selfish nationalism which was the ultimate cause of the world economic depression.

The only hope of rescuing civilisation from its present plight was to make a oneness of the whole body of nations the ruling principle of international life.—British Wireless.

NO WORK: NO FOOD.

SOVIET COTTON AREA DECREE.

(Reuter's Special Service).

Riga, Dec. 15.
"No Work: No Food!" This is the substance of a new order which has been issued by the Soviet Government in connexion with the Five Year Plan.

The order states that every able-bodied woman and child in the Soviet cotton districts must work in the cotton-fields. Food will be distributed strictly in accordance with the amount of work done.

Hours' Battle in Lancashire.

Trouble Brewing: More Work at Same Scale of Pay.

London, Dec. 16.
A serious situation has arisen in the Lancashire cotton industry.

The operatives in the spinning section have announced their decision to reject the proposals of the employers for the opening of negotiations regarding a return to longer hours of labour at the present scale of wages. Notice has been given by the

A recent picture of General Chiang Kai-shek, who has just been given way to the demands of the Canton faction.

Nanking, Dec. 15.
A long declaration giving the reasons for his resignation has been issued by General Chiang Kai-shek to the Presidents of the five Councils in Nanking. Kuomintang branches, the Provincial Governments, and his numerous military commanders. It states: "Since my appointment by the National Government as the President of the State Council in 1928, I have for three long years exerted my energies for the fulfilment of the high responsibility entrusted to me by the National Government and the Kuomintang Party, and all the policies enforced during this administration have followed closely to the principles laid down by our Founder, Dr. Sun Yat-sen.

Much Discouragement.

"Unfortunately my spirit for the welfare of this country has time and again been discouraged and interrupted by civil disturbances in the country, which have afforded an unprecedented opportunity for strong neighbouring Powers to extend their ambitions to China.

"I have trembled to think of my constant failures, but despite this, I have not for one moment lost sight of the great responsibility upon my shoulders.

"At the present moment of national crisis, I am fully convinced that to offer ample resistance to the invasion from without the country, the Kuomintang Government must present a united front, and in this connexion all civil disturbances and Kuomintang quarrels within China must be stopped at once and for ever.

Unification Hopes.

"With a strong determination to achieve an immediate termination of Kuomintang disagreements, I have repeatedly pointed to the necessity of the unification of the South with the North and the convocation of a National Congress with the Cantonese members in Nanking, after which I would keep my promise to retire from the Government as demanded by the Canton leaders.

"For this reason, the Nanking representatives attending the peace conference in Shanghai with the Cantonese officials accepted without the least hesitation the recommendation for the reunion of all Kuomintang factions in order to meet the national crisis.

"Meanwhile Mr. Hu Han-min and other Kuomintang officials have issued further statements demanding my resignation immediately.

"Since the Southern leaders demand that I resign before they come to Nanking it seems that the only solution to this problem is for me to leave. I have hesitated to resign previously and remained holding the reins of the Government because I did not desire to fall the high trust of the Kuomintang Party and the Government.

Severe Criticisms.

"But if it is considered that my presence in the Government Council is a hindrance to the reunion of the Kuomintang and seeing that the foreign policy of this Government is in a state of confusion, (Continued on Page 15.)

FAILURE NOT DUE TO LACK OF INITIATIVE.

STILL DETERMINED TO "DO HIS BIT."

LIN SEN'S POSITION

"IT HAS NOT been for want of initiative that my administration has failed to remove the internal grievances of the nation and failed to prevent the aggression of our powerful enemy. The spirit has been willing and anxious, but the lack of effective power has proved the stumbling-block."

Thus General Chiang Kai-shek in his message to the nation, explaining his resignation in response to the demands of the Canton leaders and the student agitators.

Mr. Lin Sen has been appointed acting President of the National Government and General Chan Ming-shu as acting President of the Executive Yuan, which is practically the post of Prime Minister. It is not believed, however, that either will be confirmed in these positions. Changes are expected to take place before the end of the year.

REVIEW OF RECENT EVENTS.

WORLD CRISIS.

CURRENCY GAMBLE.

New York Applies Check.

SOUTH AFRICA & GOLD BASIS.

New York, Dec. 15.
Attempts at bear raiding on weakened currencies by speculators were made in New York to-day, but the efforts were effectively blocked by a powerful international group representing the leading banks of New York, Paris, London and Amsterdam.

High Wall Street authorities, who have disclosed what has been going on behind the scenes of the exchange market, point, as an example, to the fact that short sales of Japanese Yen, an obvious mark with that country now off the gold standard, has been made almost impossible.

The Mark a Mark.

Speculators who were enquiring regarding the possibility of selling Reichsmarks met with a similar rebuff.

The bankers are of the opinion that there is little danger of such widespread raids such as occurred seven years ago, with such disastrous effects, against the old Mark and the French franc.—Reuter.

South Africa to Stay on Gold.

Cape Town, Dec. 15.
In a speech at Smithfield, in the Orange Free State to-day, General Hertzog gave a solemn assurance that the South African Government will not depart from the gold standard.

A New Unit?

The Prime Minister disclosed that in the next session of Parliament, legislation will be introduced for the establishment of South Africa's own monetary and coinage system.—Reuter.

The Japanese Yen is holding up exceedingly well. In fact, the London price yesterday showed an improvement of a penny on Monday's quotation, closing at 2/8 1/2. The par of exchange is roughly 2s. 0 1/2d.

Silver Advances.

Although silver is slightly up in London and New York, there is no change in the Hongkong dollar to-day, the demand rate remaining at 1s. 5 1/2d.

The advance in London was 1/16th spot and 1/8th forward. Speculators were small buyers, and sellers were scarce. The market ruled quiet.

In New York, silver is up 5/8ths. Shanghai quotations are 1s. 11 1/4d. and 1s. 11 1/2d., whilst the Hongkong rate is about 1s. 5 1/2d. There is practically nothing doing, however, the market being dead.

ABERDEEN DAM OPENED.

TRIBUTE TO WORK OF P.W.D.
ENGINEERS.

OFFICIAL CEREMONY.

The Aberdeen Valley Water Scheme was officially opened yesterday by His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel for the service of the Colony.

A big crowd of prominent citizens and officials was present at the dam, which is about half way between Wanchai Gap and Aberdeen. His Excellency and Lady Peel arrived about 4 p.m., and after inspecting the reservoir, congratulated the engineers responsible, Messrs. R. Henderson, W. Woodward, F. J. T. Locke, J. C. Campbell, J. A. Kinnard and S. R. Jones.

Entering the tower built in the centre of the dam bridge, His Excellency swung the wheels round which opened the outlet pipes, and caused the water to rush down to the filter beds. At the same time he opened another outlet which caused a stream of water to shoot out on to the dried bed of the old stream.

Leaving the dam bridge, His Excellency was introduced to the executive officers of the Department.

Addressing His Excellency, Mr. Cressy said:

History of Work.

Your Excellencies, Lady Peel, ladies and gentlemen, I wish first to express to you our great appreciation of the honour you have done us by visiting these Waterworks this afternoon. Mr. Henderson has edited a short description of the Aberdeen Valley Water Scheme and this with some photographs of the work has been prepared as a souvenir of to-day's visit.

In 1929 the Legislative Council approved of the Aberdeen Valley Scheme and this was particularly referred to by Sir Cecil Clementi in his address on the Colony's Waterworks to the Council in September of that year. The water rights of the Aberdeen Valley were acquired by the Tai Shing Paper Mills Co., who obtained powers to construct the old dam required for this industry with the provision that water should always be kept in storage to meet the requirements of Aberdeen. The old Paper Works Dam was built in 1890, and raised in 1899. This Dam is now being partially demolished so as to permit of its being strengthened and modernized to give it a new lease of life and to form a lower level storage reservoir to augment the new upper Aberdeen reservoir.

The Contractors for the work on this dam were the Hongkong Excavation, Pile Driving and Construction Co., who have made a very satisfactory completion of the work though not without those many vicissitudes which are so often met with in Engineering work of this nature. Capt. H. Montague Ede, the Managing Director, is to be congratulated on his determined efforts to make the work a success. The cable way for the transport of materials from the Aberdeen Block Yard and the Elevator Tower and mechanical chuting apparatus have introduced these modern methods which are a great improvement on the antiquated methods so dear to the heart of most local Contractors.

Drought Precautions.

There are extensions to the catchwaters feeding this Reservoir from the East and West still to be undertaken, which will add to the catchment area and thus increase storage against times of drought.

IN THE BANDIT COUNTRY: THE ROUND-UP IN CORSICA.

After many years of toleration the French authorities have decided to clear the island of Corsica of the brigands who lately have committed several murders. A crowd of nearly 2,000 curious spectators delayed traffic on East Seward Road Shanghai last week, as police officers from Wayside Station directed the removal of three victims of the International Settlement's latest ghastly murder in which a Chinese carpenter, his wife and son were hacked to pieces. ## Gems of Peril

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

Old Mrs. Jupiter, wife of the millionaire automobile manufacturer, gives an expensive dinner and dance for her secretary, Mary Harkness, who is to marry Dirk Jupiter, blundering young lawyer.

Mary receives a telephone call from her connoisseur brother, Eddie, saying he is in trouble and must see her. The house is strictly guarded against "intruders" because Mrs. Jupiter is wearing the famous Jupiter rubies.

Mary arranges for Eddie to be admitted secretly. When she goes upstairs to meet him she finds Mrs. Jupiter robed and murdered in her room. Seeking Dirk, she finds him with Cornelius Tubor, his childhood sweetheart. Dirk advises her to keep silent about Eddie will be her best friend. However, reporter for the Star, shows unusual interest in the case.

CHAPTER VI

"What do you know about telephone calls?" Kane asked.

"I don't know a thing, Inspector. I just asked," the Star reporter replied. The reporter, whose name was Bowen, turned away toward the stairs. "Well, I'll just run up and see how Bill's making out. I'd like to get a look at that necklace myself. No objection?"

"Go ahead."

They had all gone and Mary found herself alone with Mr. Jupiter in the library. A fire crackled in the great fireplace. A dim haze of cigarette smoke filled the air. It was very quiet. The tick of a grandfather clock sounded in her ears like the voice of conscience, pushing her forward.

She got up and went over and sat down beside Mr. Jupiter in front of the fire.

"Mr. Jupiter, there's something I must tell you."

Her hands were cold and her throat so dry she could hardly get the words out but she was resolved to go on. She could not bear the sight of that bowed figure without doing something to help.

He looked up vaguely, as if becoming aware of her for the first time. Seeing the suffering in that lined face, Mary's heart failed her. She remembered with a stab of fear Dr. Jordan's warning of a few hours ago. "He must not be allowed to brood if we can help it. If he does, his mind will go."

Mr. Jupiter's devotion to his wife, the doctor had reminded Mary, was unique even among happily married couples. He told her why; at least, he told what he had heard—that Mrs. Jupiter had turned down the richest man in their small upstate village to marry Jim Jupiter, a penniless mechanic, and live in poverty. That was why he had lived just to give her everything. Now she was taken from him. Brooding on the tragedy might shake his sanity, and no wonder, since it was the very jewels he had delighted to deck her in that had brought about her death.

"Come and see me soon," Dr. Jordan had said to Mary, earnestly. "I want to talk to you about what we must do to save him." Odd that she should be the one he talked to about this. But she did not have time to wonder what he meant.

"Mr. Jupiter, I've something to tell you," she repeated.

"Oh? Oh, yes," he smiled and roused himself. "I know—you're going to leave us. Well, we expected that. But we didn't think it would be so soon. You and Dirk going to get married right off?"

"No, no!" Mary assured him emphatically, much to her own surprise. "Not for a long time yet." He looked utterly bereft; what else could she have said?

He was staring into the fire again. His face was working, like that of a child who is trying hard not to cry. Sick with pity, Mary looked away.

"It's not the same without her, is it, child?" he said sadly.

Dr. Jordan's words flashed into her mind. Taking a deep breath, she plunged ahead.

"Mr. Jupiter, last night my—I had a telephone call from my brother. I haven't seen him for quite a long time. He called me up during the party, and—"

His face was turned politely toward her, but she knew he was not listening.

"That so? How's he getting on?" He was making an effort to be interested. But to her own ears she sounded like a fearful fool, chattering of her own affairs at such a time.

"I'm afraid he's in trouble, Mr. Jupiter. I don't know what, but I'm afraid it's pretty bad." ("An amateur—a bungler!" She must not think about that!)

"Well, the flat old voice replied lifelessly, 'nothing that a few dollars won't fix, I guess. He'll come out all right. Few things in the world that a few dollars won't fix.'"

"Oh, it isn't that! But I asked him here—and he hasn't come. I've been—pretty worried—"

How to tell him! Here she was going round and round the subject, and not saying what she meant to say at all.

"Don't do it!" he barked at her. "Don't do it! It's not a woman's place to worry about a man. Man's place to worry about a woman. Let him do that!"

"I will! But he's so young. He isn't 21 yet." She hadn't thought of it before but now it came to her that whatever Eddie had been up to, his punishment would be tempered for him—he was still a minor in the eyes of the law.

"I'm sorry to see you go, now more than ever," Mr. Jupiter resumed. Eddie did not interest him much; he was of a different stripe from his sister, and he had never cared much about the boy. "I'll tell you, if it wasn't for this Dirk of yours—we had plans about you, Mama and I. I don't know but she'd like them carried out anyway, now she's gone and can't attend to it herself."

Mary had no idea of what was coming; as he continued, her amazement grew.

"We always wanted a daughter, and after Bruce went away, and you came, Mama used to say how nice it was to have a young girl in the house. There's something about a girl—you can buy 'em dresses and things." The Paris dress! How happy she had been in it, only yesterday. Mary shut her eyes to squeeze back the tears.

"Of course, Bruce will marry some day; but then we never see much of Bruce as we'd like to." The shadow of a very real bitterness crossed his face. "No, that might not happen anyway in our lifetime, and like as not it would be one of those foreign women he's always writing about. No, we thought we wouldn't wait for that. We had you here, and liked you, and we thought we'd just adopt you. Now, what would you have said to that?"

It was like a fairy-tale come true. She found herself laughing and crying at once.

"It would have been wonderful! Perfectly wonderful!"

"Yes—well," he said, pleased as a child, "we'll have to see about it when all this is over. Things are pretty bad right now. But you mustn't let it worry you, or change your plans a lot. Bruce'll be along any day now. I dare say there'll be an answer to my cable before the day's over, and when he comes he'll brighten things up a bit."

Mary tried to believe that this was so but could only reflect bitterly on what she had heard of the absent Bruce and his ways.

"Pull that bell-cord, will you?" Mr. Jupiter asked, suddenly. But Spence when he came had nothing to report. The old man sank back.

Another modern miracle has been introduced within the walls of the Vatican City. For the above portrait of Pope Pius XI was transmitted by wire directly from the Vatican, over an apparatus installed by Edoard Belin, the French inventor. This picture, the first sent from the papal city by telephoto, was received in Paris.

"I suppose there hasn't been time."

Although she had never seen him, Mary's heart was hardened against him. It was plain to see how much his parents missed him, how puzzled they were by his continued absence. They treasured his infrequent letters, written in a patois almost unintelligible to them and sprinkled with the names of persons and places they knew nothing at all about.

Now she tried to soften the blow for the old man.

"He may be out of town."

"Well, he's no business to be!" he snapped. Instead of soothing him, the suggestion seemed to anger him. "The place for that young man is back in this country, and I'll mighty soon tell him so when I see him! If he'd been here, where he ought to be, at his mother's side, this never would have happened!"

Whether his grievance was justified or not, it was exceedingly bitter. Mary hoped for Bruce's sake he was managing to endure spring in Paris this year.

"We've taken a lot of comfort in you, Mary," Mr. Jupiter continued more gently. "You may as well have some of what we've got, along with Bruce. The Ruyters have got nothing. Never will have anything. Steve's too close. He wouldn't plant a nickel that wouldn't raise a dollar."

Mary sat stunned. They loved her enough for that—to have made her their own daughter, given her a share in the immense Jupiter fortune! But would he feel the same about it, when he knew?

"That would have been wonderful," she managed to say, "but—let's not think about it now."

The nurse Dr. Jordan had sent came in, starchy efficient, and interrupted them. "Time for Mr. Jupiter to get some rest," she told him firmly. "Those were Dr. Jordan's orders. Bed, and his lunch-brought up to him."

"Faugh!" The nurse recoiled before his reflection of her. "Where's Spence? Who told Jordan to send a woman over here? You go back and tell him I said to mind his own business!"

UNION CHURCH, JORDAN ROAD, KOWLOON.

The Annual Meeting of the Members and Adherents of the above Church will be held in the Church Schoolroom on Friday, December 18th at 9.00 p.m.

Chairman—Rev. Frank Short.

Business—Presentation of Annual Reports, Election of Officers and Committee for the ensuing year, and the presentation of the proposed draft Constitution, &c.

The attendance of all Members and Adherents is earnestly requested.

News has also been received of the proposed departure from England in the Menelaus, which is due to arrive in the Colony on the 4th January, 1932, of our new pastor, Rev. E. L. Allen, M. A. Ph.D., who is being accompanied by Mrs. Allen and child.

Dr. and Mrs. Allen have been previously in the Far East, as they were both Missionaries at Swabue, near Bias Bay (about three years ago) but were driven out by Pirates and Communists, when they returned to England.

It is with much hope that we look forward to the arrival of Dr. and Mrs. Allen, and with anticipation that under his leadership our Church will receive a new impetus. Much appreciation is also due to the various Ministers who have so kindly occupied our Pulpit since the departure to England of Rev. J. H. Johnston, B.A.

TERRORISM IN AUSTRALIA.

CONSORTING BILL PASSED.

Melbourne, Nov. 12. The bombing of Sir Stanley Argyle's home, a telephoned threat to Judge Moule, and anonymous letters threatening to shoot three members of the Victorian Legislative Council who were prominent in requesting that less than the bus fare be paid on relief work, which Mr. Hogan's Party in the Lower House is resisting, led to the quick passage of the Consorting Bill through both Houses and the arrest of a suspected Communist.

The Bill is similar to that introduced during the Bayin regime in New South Wales, which was effective in breaking up gangs and makes consorting with reputed thieves and convicted vagrants an offence.

The influx of inter-State criminals for the Melbourne Cup season, unemployment, and the effectiveness of the New South Wales Act have led to increasing armed hold-ups and general crime in Melbourne.

Precautions were taken yesterday to keep unauthorised persons from the State Parliament House and to guard the homes and persons of certain public men, but it is now expected that the Consorting Act will prevent further terrorism.

COST OF SMOKE.

OVER £80,000,000 A YEAR.

The use of coal was prohibited in London in 1273 because it was "prejudicial to health," and yet smoke now costs London £8,810,000 a year and the whole country something like £80,000,000.

It adds £290,000 to Manchester's domestic washing bill, and it is responsible for Westminster getting less than 40 per cent. of the available sunshine.

The £120,000 a year that has to be charged to rates and taxes for the repair of our public buildings is due to smoke, and so is the abnormal mortality among plants in public parks, which results in an expenditure of £1,500 when £80 would be sufficient in a clean atmosphere.

These and many other facts are to be found in the first handbook on Smoke Abatement published by the National Smoke Abatement Society.

In a chronological table it is revealed that a man was executed in 1306 for disobeying the Royal Proclamation prohibiting the use of coal by artificers in their furnaces. In 1257 the smoke at Nottingham was so bad that Queen Eleanor was compelled to leave the town.

BOYS AND GIRLS ON "SAFETY FIRST."

ROUND ABUSE OF "ROAD HOG."

The subject of "Safety First" has been considered by 241,160 elementary school children, and 346 of them have won prizes. Some of the prizes have been won by extracts from their essays on the strength of the language used to condemn the reckless driver.

"Those most abominable of malefactors, road hogs," writes Kathleen Murray, aged 15 years, a pupil at Enfield Central Girls' School. "They flash through the one main street (of villages) like lightning, and then go home and tell their friends that they have seen Little Bishington or Lower Culpington-on-Mud."

"They don't seem to realize the dangers to which they are exposing the poor villagers who can (come of them) remember the time when the silence of their little village was broken only by the grunt of the pigs or 'the shrill cry of the man-drake calling to its mate' as a certain humorist once remarked."

First prize of five guineas and a certificate signed by the Duke of York was won by Kathleen.

Daniel Williams, aged 16, of Chiswick Central-Boys' School, signs for the days of the horse and cart and certain safety. "The horse has been supplanted by horse-power. Instead of the cart are the capacious sized motor-vans, which go along our roads," he laments. And he adds, "smelly engines." Perhaps there are not enough wheels inside a car.

George Gray, also of the Chiswick School, who was third, pictures "harassed citizens" attempting to cross streets. "They probably wake up in hospital with a dull aching pain somewhere or other. Some are not fortunate enough to wake up at all. Yet, with a little care and forethought, these people would have been safe at home, with friends and family, at the end of the day."

Wisdom comes from Winnie Woods, 13, of Heston mixed school, on the subject of alcohol. "Never touch it," she advises the driver. If he does "his nerves are not quite steady."

Doubts about our civilisation assailed a boy of 14, of The Plaxhet Senior Boys' School, East Ham. "We are what we call civilized," he writes, "and then draws upon his memory for stories of cannibals, &c. 'This is regarded by the lowest of the low; we are, thank goodness, free from such as this—but are we!'"

A spectacular fire is one of the features of "Tiger Rose", the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone version of the famous stage melodrama, which comes to the Queen's Theatre to-morrow. The cabin of a stranded doctor, which role is played by H. B.
Warner, is burned by an overturned lamp. The scene takes place in the Hudson Bay district.

As a matter of fact, the fire was filmed in two sections. The exterior of the cabin, against a night sky, was filmed on location near Lake Arrowhead. Extraordinary precautions were taken because of the dry weather, and forest rangers with fire fighting equipment stood by to see that adjacent timber did not catch on fire.

Needless to say, the interior scenes in the burning cabin could not be taken at the same time. So the cabin was reconstructed on a stage at Warner Bros.'s studio, and with the light turned on full force, so the cameras could come into play, it was burned under supervision of Los Angeles Fire Department officials, who stood by with equipment to make sure that the big stage did not catch fire.

Monte Blue and Lyle Velez are co-starred in "Tiger Rose", which is taken from Willard Mack's tremendously successful stage play of the same name. George Fitzmaurice directed.

The screen play was written by Harvey Thew and Gordon Righter.
There are several popular and well known players appearing in the supporting cast of "Tiger Rose." These include H. B. Warner, Grant Withers, Bull Montana, Caeton Glass, Tully
Marshall and the well known dog star, Kin-Tin-Tin.

"Daddy Long Legs."

He can play any sort of role from a border bandit to a suave medical man, from a reckless adventurer in the Foreign Legion to a Banquo sportman or a cautious German financier, and do them all equally well.
In all Hollywood, there is but a handful of actors who can be cast in any kind of role with full assurance on the part of producer and director that they will give a smooth and convincing performance. And of that handful Warner Baxter, the distinguished star of the dark flashing eyes and wavy hair, who plays the title role, opposite the delightful Janet Gaynor in the new Fox romance, "Daddy Long Legs," which opens its local next attraction at the King's Theatre, is without question the most outstanding.

Versatility is Baxter's most notable characteristic. Other plays, perhaps, can give equally good portrayals in roles for which they themselves are especially suited, but none of them can handle such an unusual variety of parts with ease and realism.

Rarely does Baxter resort to the artifices of trick make-up such as the late Lon Chaney relied upon for his grotesque effects. Only in the Fox production, "Such Men Are Dangerous," where the story demanded that he first appear as the puffy, bearded German banker in order that a plastic surgeon might transform him into a fashion-plate did he consent to disguise himself artificially.

The secret of his success is internal rather than external. Suitable costuming and the psychological effect of correct backgrounds all help to some extent, but a rare facility in adapting his mental outlook to that of the character he is playing, accounts chiefly for this channel-like quality
he possesses in a high degree.

The English ne'er-do-well of "The Squaw Man," the desperate French officer of "Renegades," the glamorous bandit of "In Old Arizona" and "The Arizona Kid" and the polished physician of "Doctors' Wives," all offer a startling contrast in roles, yet it is difficult to say which of these portrayals was Baxter's best.

Many critics who have followed the eminent star's career closely and who have already seen "Daddy Long Legs," claim that his role of the wealthy and lonely benefactor of Miss Gaynor, who portrays "Judy," the orphaned waif, far exceeds anything
he has done to date.

These same critics say that never before has Janet Gaynor been cast in such a suitable role, in fact, some say Jean Webster, the author, must have been thinking of dainty Janet,
when she wrote the original story,
years ago.

"Daddy Long Legs" was not unfamiliar to either Baxter or Miss Gaynor when they started to film the winning romance. Miss Gaynor saw the original stage play, when she was a mere child, and it was the character of "Judy"—the same role she now portrays, that first turned her eyes and mind toward the stage and screen. As for Baxter, he played the title role in dramatic stock long before he ever thought of entering the movies.

Una Merkel and John Arledge head
the supporting cast of "Daddy Long Legs," which includes such stage and screen luminaries as Claude Gillingwater, Kathryn Williams, Elizabeth Patterson, Lulie Closser Hale, Effie Ellator and others. Alfred Santell, who recently directed Charles Farrell and Ellsa Land in "Body and Soul," directed the photoplay which was adapted in continuity and dialogue by Sonya Levien.

"The Great Lover."
Adolphe Menjou had to work hard to keep from being outshone by his fellow players in "The Great Lover," which is showing at the Queen's Theatre.

For Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer gathered together a group of unusually prominent screen players for their film version of the celebrated New York stage success, even going so far as to borrow Irene Dunne from another studio because she seemed the ideal type for the feminine lead opposite Menjou. Miss Dunne recently received critical acclaim for her work in "Camarron."

The other principal feminine player is the tempestuous Russian actress, Bacanova, back in films after a long travelling tour. Bacanova's last notable picture appearances were in
"Docks of New York," "Avalanche," "Wolf of Wall Street" and "Forget-ten Faces."

The important male roles are played by Ernest Torrence, last seen in
"Shipmate," Neil Hamilton of
"Strangers May Kiss" and "Laughing Sinners" fame; Cliff Edwards as a riotous press agent; Hale Hamilton and the stuttering Roscoe Ates.

There was no hesitation in choosing Menjou for the role of Paurel, famous opera baritone and lover, for M-G-M executives were agreed that no other actor in Hollywood was as well suited to the role in which Leo Ditrichstein starred on the stage for so many years. Menjou's last films were "The Front Page" and "The Easiest Way."

"The Great Lover" was adapted to the screen by Gene Markey and Edgar Allan Woolf and was directed by Harry Beaumont, whose last production was the highly successful Joan Crawford vehicle, "Dance, Dance, Dance."

What is easily the finest glorification of the audible screen is now showing at the King's Theatre, Frank Lloyd's production of "East Lynne," with Anne Harding, Olive Brook, Conrad Nagel and a brilliant cast of truly popular players. There is so much to commend this Fox Movietone that to attempt to describe it with a single phrase is a great injustice.

In the first place, "East Lynne" in this case becomes the screen's most tragic achievement, an accomplishment that vibrates with rare entertainment from beginning to end.

Secondly, the story, adapted from Mrs. Wood's novel by Tom Barry and Bradley King, moves swiftly and develops with such dramatic power and consistency that the two hours consumed in unfolding it seem but mere minutes. Thirdly, Anne Harding achieves new laurels and justifies the characterization of the screen's "greatest emotional actress." A lover, Isabel, certainly, has never been seen on stage or screen. She lives the role every inch of the way.
She radiates with an incomparable beauty and sincerity that contributes importantly to the success of the picture. In the fourth place, Conrad Nagel and Olive Brook give characterizations that will add much to their popularity. The latter does the outstanding work of his career as Levison. Conrad Nagel is at his best as the ambitious young lawyer, influenced by his spinster sister, who makes an outcast of his wife.

The supporting cast is an unusually important one, including Beryl Mercer, Cecilia Loftus, O. P. Heggie and David
Torrence. The direction of Frank Lloyd is flawless and the settings by the famous Joseph Urban enhance the picture.

The Movietone adaptation of "East Lynne" differs considerably from other stage or screen versions. It concerns the rebellion of a dutiful wife, ruled by the jealous sister of her husband, who is driven away from her baby and forced to carry on an affair with her husband's best friend, who has always loved her and who gives his life in protecting her.

"Africa Speaks."
An amusing and fascinating illustration of the old adage that there is nothing new under the sun, especially under the African sun, is shown in "Africa Speaks," the Columbia African romance which is now at the Central Theatre.

The tense emotional drama of the picture is relieved by a hilarious incident which will cause theatre goers to wonder and if all their valuated and elaborate jazz sophistication isn't stale copy rather than a new thrill.

During the film of one of the more daring exploits of "Africa Speaks," Director Paul L. Hoeffler wanted a background of real dead-in-the-jungle native dancing—assuming that the curious and funny posturing of the naked savage routine would be a comic and interesting side-light. So it was—but the laugh was on Hoeffler and the Columbia people.

"Black Bottom?" Varsity Drag?
Voodoo-do? The film company supplied the phonograph and the native women the dancing. And what dancing! They started slowly, hardly moving their hands or feet. Just the body—in the best manner of one of the Ziegfeld Follies or Earl Carroll famous torrid tropic scenes—dances that it takes a trained chorus and brilliant dance directors weeks to get the rudiments of.

Then they started moving. And these really "wild" women have everything in the way of "hot" interpretation of the rhythm of the jungle.

They performed steps that were not only off Broadway but away ahead of it. They made the boasted sizzling show numbers look tame. On a Broadway stage, their dancing would bring the reformers and morality societies down with a shout of outrage. And yet these women belong to a very moral tribe of savages.

At any rate, the theatre-goer can judge for himself. The Columbia company consider it one of the most surprising and absorbing things they found in the screening of a picture where shock followed shock in the weird heart of the jungle.

At an emergency meeting of the Central Executive and Central Control Committees of the Kuo-mintangs this morning, Chiang Kai-shek submitted his resignation of all posts, which was accepted.

Mr. Lin Shen becomes the Acting President, and Gen. Chen Ming-shu the Chairman of the Executive Yuan.

Contrary to expectations, Chiang Kai-shek is not leaving Nanking.

It is stated that he is remaining in order to give what assistance is possible to the Government.

It is understood that Mr. T. V.
Soong is not resigning.

At this morning's meeting,
Messrs. Yu Yu-jen, Tai Chi-tao and Chao Yuan-chun resigned from the presidencies of the Control, Examination and Legislative Yuan, but their resignations were rejected, and they were urged to carry on.

This afternoon Lin Shen and Chen Ming-shu issued a circular telegram reporting assumption of office and urged members of the C.E.C. and C.C.C. recently appointed by the Fourth National Kuomintang Congress to proceed to Nanking to hold a plenary session and appoint a Government, so as to relieve them of their temporary posts.

penings.—Reuter.

Children's Fevers.
Recurring feverishness in children is very weakening and though the attacks may not appear serious they should not be regarded with complacency. If they are allowed to continue, the child's vitality and resisting power becomes lower and lower until there is grave danger of his falling victim to something much more serious.

For simple fever in children
there is nothing finer than Baby's Own Tablets. This pleasant tasting children's medicine is ideal for many reasons, but chiefly because the prescription is composed of elements that act in a gentle and natural way. The laxative action of Baby's Own Tablets is soothing and easy; there are none of the unpleasant features, the purging and the gripping, with consequent injury to delicate internal membranes, which are associated with old-fashioned crude medicines.

The tablets have a cleansing and gently tonic action on the stomach, cool the blood and reduced the temperature rapidly. As a general health safeguard for children you can use nothing better or safer. Baby's Own Tablets also check diarrhoea, allay croup, expel worms, whilst for teething babies they are especially invaluable, easing the pains and thus inducing the sound natural sleep so essential to the little one's welfare.

No parents should be without Baby's Own Tablets. All chemists can supply you.

SCHOOL CHRISTMAS FUNCTION.

PARTY TO PUPILS OF THE CENTRAL BRITISH.

The Headmaster of the Central British School and Mrs. Nightingale, were genial hosts at the fancy dress party which they gave yesterday to about a hundred junior members of the institution. By now an annual treat to be looked forward to by those under the care of the popular Headmaster and his wife, the occasion furnished fun and frolic in unrestricted measure.

The evening's programme commenced with the presentation of three short one-act plays, in which the patient tuition of Miss P. W. Brown, O.B.E., B.A., as producer and coacher, was evident. These plays were given in the Church Hall nearby, and afforded as much enjoyment to parents and friends as to the children.

Following the plays, all present adjourned to the School Hall which had been decked out in Christmas fashion, with fairy lights and coloured bunting striking a pronounced note of festivity. The majority of the children were in fancy dress costumes, and with so many pretty and original examples the work of judging the two best in the parade which followed was rendered an extremely difficult one. Eventually, the decision went to Philip Egan (dressed as a cigarette) and Marjorie Shelley (as a basket of flowers) as possessing the most original costumes. They were awarded the Headmaster's prizes.

Games and dancing added to the merriment, and a tired but very happy gathering at the close cheered the Headmaster and his wife for their kindly interest.

A world of appreciation is due for the devoted efforts of members of the School staff, including Miss P. W. Brown, Mr. H. H. Beddow, Mr. A. Mulcahy, Miss Munro and Miss Graham.

The Performers.

Those who took part in the plays were:

The Spinster of Hush (by Philip Johnson).—Peggy McCaw, Austra Miller, Iris Woolley, Patricia Gardner, Vera Levkovich and Ruth Ingram.

The Man of Ideas (by Miles Malleson).—Frank Anslow, James Gardner, Noreen Cooper and Donald Paul.

Thirty Minutes in a Street (by Beatrice Maynor).—Robert Blyth, Vladimir Grunberg, Kathleen Clarke, Frank Anslow, Albert Parsons, Noreen Cooper, Mac Brown, Patricia Gardner, Peggy McCaw, Marie Clarke, Nina Anniss, Jack Sulter, David Blake, Ruth Ingram, Austra Miller, Iris Woolley, John Miller, James Gardner and Dennis Gregory.

On account of the very large number of pupils now on the school roll, which makes it impossible for all to be accommodated at one party within the rather restricted premises, it has been found convenient to organize a separate function for the seniors. This will be given to-morrow evening, when the same plays will be presented, to be followed by a dance.

WOMEN'S WORLD

FOR OUR LADY READERS.

PARISIAN NOTES.

New Woollen Materials.

We are still allowed to be sporting and athletic to a certain extent, although it is no longer considered smart for a woman to spend her whole time playing games, or dashing about the countryside in high speed motor cars.

This season, we may say, that the charm of sporting styles is compensated by the need of a personal touch in the selection of materials in consequence of their special texture, and the indescribable variety of their colours. In the collections which have just come out a very important place is taken by the new wool fabrics which are exquisitely fanciful, and perfectly supple. They have original designs, diagonals, and chevrons in comparatively lively shades being noticeable. In tailor-mades, for motoring or walking, in ensembles for morning, in combines for general wear, in dressy tailor-mades, these materials express a dominant point in the new styles.

Smartly tailored sports suits of the finest flannel suiting dyed to any colour you wish, are going to be very popular this autumn. Some of the sports suits have suede coats, topping skirts in the most lovely colours. The skins from which they are made are so fine and supple that they look like very thick, dull surfaced crepe.

It is a pleasant surprise to many women, when they come to realise that they need not go on wearing a beret for ever, and those who have so bravely bared their heads to the storms of ridicule, may seek once more the welcome protection of a brim or at least the beginning of one.

TO-DAY'S RECIPE.

Caramel custard, boiled and steamed custard we all know only custard, easy and good?

Cover with custard.

Newest in Belts.

Here is a smart new belt—knitted in two contrasting colours of heavy yarn—black and red, red and green and various other combinations.

TWO SMART JERSEY COSTUMES.

Jersey loses its careless nonchalance and takes on a suave formality when used in some of the new dressmaker costumes, carefully tailored and flatteringly designed.

Beige and brown jersey, in a wavy patterned weave, is used for a jacket and dress suit. The one-piece dress, made with intricate pleatings through the hipline and bodice, has a cute double collar of fine linen and a belt of brown and beige suede. The longer-thanhipline coat has raglan sleeves and a nifty flare. A beret of ermine silk jauntily on one side of the head, and a brown and beige feather stands up on the other.

Jersey tweed in yellowish beige and rich brown, is used in diagonal cut to make a very smart little frock with epaulet shoulders that are very new, and a dark brown cowl scarf collar of silk that winds around the neck and crosses in front to make looped bows at the waistline. A brown sports hat with folded crown, brown gloves and shoes complete the chic picture.

FASHION NOTES.

There is no end to the white made for night. White satin or some thin white crepe, are the two materials that are used for a large percentage of evening dresses in Paris, and when white satin is used, it is the supple crepe-satin that starkly reveals curves.

Pastel shades are out of the smart picture for afternoon wear, and are replaced by tints of pink, blue, green, and yellow.
Occasionally, frocks of vivid green, yellow, or red, sparkle on the smart night scene.

Nothing smarter than the ermine cravat has been seen this season. Paris combines black dyed ermine and white ermine, to make a narrow stole throw-over collar for the autumn street costume.

To successfully achieve complete cachet on a Saturday to Monday jaunt, there is a rule. It is:— Don't do what you can't dress up to. The reverse applies equally;
don't dress up to what you don't do. These are good mottoes to keep hanging up in your memory-front, anyway.

NAIL BEAUTY.

It is important to keep the cuticle lifted from the nail, but do not achieve this by pressing it back with the towel after washing the hands: A preparation can be obtained which is claimed to cure cuticle and hangnail. This is applied around and under the nails one day, and a nourishing cream, to strengthen the growth of the embryo nail, applied the next day, the treatment being given on alternate days until a cure is effected.

The method of applying liquid enamel is important. First use a remover to clear off all traces of the old enamel, point the fingers down and point on the new. The moons must not be covered, their dull finish providing a contrast with the enamel. Apply this neatly so that it does not lap over the skin, and if the tips are to be kept dry they should be "dressed" while the preparation is moist. If a second coating is required to give an exaggerated effect, wait until the first application is perfectly dry.

FOR THE STUDY.

A combined paper-knife and magnifying glass will be appreciated for the office or study desk. It is made in the shape of pince-nez, with one small round glass at the end; the knife is round and made of tortoiseshell.

GEMS OF PERIL.

business, I guess I've still got sense enough to know when to go to bed."

When the indignant lady had finally been persuaded that her presence was not wanted, and Mr.
Jupiter had been delivered into the hands of his ancient servant, Mary bethought herself of Bessie. It might not hurt to drop a cautious word.

Spence could not say where she was. She was a light-headed baggage and he would just like the job of discharging her if she didn't tend to business better than this.

"Oh, I wouldn't do that just yet!"
Mary said hurriedly. "She's probably around somewhere."

"She'll be wherever the men are,"
was Spence's acid reply.

This proved true enough. For as Mary mounted the stairs to go to her own room she was surprised to hear voices on the landing, one of them the maid's.

"Don't you know any movie directors, honest?" she was saying.
"Gee, I thought newspapermen knew everybody there is!"

The voice of Bowen, the Star's reporter, replied wearily. "No, I don't, and if I did, what of it?
Listen, sister, I've got an edition to catch. If you've got anything to tell me, let's have it and forget the Hollywood stuff. Come on, what's it all about?"

"Will you put my picture in the paper?"

"Sure, sure. Out with it." The reporter moved down a step. Time was short and he did not believe the girl had anything of importance to reveal.

"We—ll," she lowered her voice to a whisper just as Mary hurried up the steps.

"Oh, Bessie," Mary interrupted coolly. "Spence is looking everywhere for you. Your friend will excuse you, I'm sure."

The startled maid jumped and fled past her down the stairs in precipitate haste, leaving Mary face to face with the embarrassed newspaperman.

"Have you finished your work?"
she asked coldly. "Because if you

EXIT CHIANG!

The resignation of Chiang Kai-shek and the break-up of his Government represent a major event in China's history. So far as foreign observers are concerned, the main point of interest is whether the change is merely another in the long series of Chinese political squabbles, or whether it will be shown to be of deeper significance. Time will supply the answer. If we were to judge the situation by the recent declarations of those who have been mainly responsible for the dramatic turn which events have now taken, China is on the threshold of an entirely new era, which will give her a united and representative Government based on popular control. But the world at large has long since come to be somewhat sceptical of taking the promises of politicians at their face value, whether in the Orient or the Occident. Deeds count, not words. So it would be foolish to accept the latest China development as necessarily implying that the country's troubles are now all over and everything henceforth will be plain sailing. Indeed, there are possibilities in the situation of matters becoming much worse before they get better; it would be the height of folly to shut our eyes to these.

We suppose it can be said that Chiang Kai-shek has fallen because, so far as there is in China any medium for expressing popular opinion, he has lost the confidence of the people. Certain it is that the political influences which have been directed against him latterly, coupled with the tremendous student activity, made his position untenable. The complaint on the one hand has been that he has gathered too much power to himself; on the other, that he has not followed a sufficiently aggressive policy towards Japan on the Manchurian issue. He has certainly shown, by the suppression of his political enemies and his high-handed actions in restricting the liberties of some of them, that he has some of the qualities of a dictator, though it can be said with equal truth that, had he wished, he might have been even more ruthless in his dictatorship. Had he been, it might not have been beyond his wits to crush the movement which has now culminated in his overthrow. Incidentally, it remains to be seen whether the country's new rulers will be less inclined to the methods of the dictator if and when they believe their position is in danger. For that matter, has China yet evolved politically beyond the point when some sort of dictatorship is inevitable? Reverting to the second point, China's policy towards Japan in the present crisis, surely it cannot be reasonably suggested that, in her present state, China is able to follow a bolder course than she has done. To do so would be to court disaster. But the student element has never been noted for sobriety of thought.

What of the future? We would that we knew. The professions of those who have brought about the change are not to be discounted as mere empty talk. Let us be fair to the extent of crediting them with sincerity of motive. If they can accomplish a tithe of the things which they have, in recent declarations, deemed essential to the well-being of the country, they will leave behind them a record of value. But we have to bear in mind two points, amongst others—that it is always easier to criticise than to do, and that there are likely to be so many shades of political opinion amongst the newcomers that it will not be easy to secure harmony. In particular, will the new Administration be judged abroad by the nature of its foreign policy, in which connexion the extraliquor issue is of outstanding importance. As to the country's purely domestic policy, that is a matter which solely concerns the Chinese themselves. We would fain hope, however, that the momentous events now occurring presage a honest attempt to straighten out the tangled skein of China's national life, whilst at the same time betokening a wise and helpful foreign policy. The opportunities are immense. May they be used in the interests not only of China herself, but of the world in general.

America and the League.

The spontaneous and unequivocal co-operation of the United States with the League of Nations in finding a solution to the Manchuria problem is regarded, in many quarters, as of far greater importance to the world at large than the resolution just passed in Paris. Some, indeed, in error, hail the action as the first step towards America's adherence to the League. Be that as it may, cooperation has been effected whenever the interests of the world are involved. Whether America should be inside or outside the League is a matter on which there is a difference of opinion; but it is difficult to imagine how there can be any difference of opinion on the desirability of the participation of the United States in deliberations which concern all nations. Since the League of Nations is, for the majority of countries, the recognized medium of international action, it is necessarily with the League of Nations that the United States must, in an emergency, work for the preservation of peace. Here is the suggested consultative pact to bolster up the Peace Pact in action before such a consultative pact is framed. The fact takes precedence of the pact. All the arguments against vanish when it is seen that the force of circumstances impel consultation whenever there is a real crisis. It would perhaps be possible to argue that the actual signing of the pact is of no importance, since its prospective provisions will be fulfilled whether the pact exists or not. That is true; practice has come before promise; events have outstripped documents. But there is a value in the bare existence of a treaty even before the event to which it would apply. The fact that the understanding is on paper

As a result of the recent bazaar held in connexion with St. Paul's Girls' College, the sum of $1,030 (Shanghai currency), representing $1,000 (Hongkong currency), being part of the proceeds, has been forwarded by the Bishop of Victoria, as Chairman of the School Council, to Bishop Root's of Hankow, towards the fund for Flood Relief in the Hankow districts of China.

Instead of merely in the air may help to prevent the event. The world in general attaches great importance to treaties. They have a reassuring effect. It may be that they are often superfluous, and merely put in writing a state of things that has already been established. There are doubtless territorial and political arrangements that are consecrated by custom and not by treaty, and are better respected than many contractual engagements. But in the quest for security in which the world is now engaged, it is essential to set down by pen and ink the minimum liabilities of each nation. On that basis an international order can best be built. So, though there must be consultations with or without a special pact, the consultative pact is not superfluous, since it sets before the eyes of the more timorous nations the certainty of those consultations on which depends the possibility of some measure of disarmament.

The critics here have all praised the majestic sweep and cumulative power of his treatment. His characters are like gigantic figures hewn in granite. I am intensely curious to know what London will make of the play. There will be a breach in Anglo-American relations if it is not a success there.

NEW YORK CALLING.

By R. J. CRUIKSHANK.

Contract Bridge is becoming alarming. It began as a game, it has developed into a religion, and it now threatens to end as a barbarous superstition.

The seriousness of the faithful takes one's breath away. The other evening I met a middle-aged couple who told me with pride they had learned by heart every page of Sidney Lenz's book on the game. "Please recite me some of it," I pleaded with misguided flippancy. Misguided—because they did.

Passion for Perfection.
The depression has increased the number of bridge devotees in America by thousands. It is a cheaper form of recreation than Mr. Ziegfeld's Follies or lectures on the Higher Inwardness.

Teachers abound. Suburban ladies who used to take lessons in the piano now spend their afternoons getting instruction in card conventions.

The dilettante is frowned upon. We must all strive to be strenuously professional. I have actually seen more than one poor feminine amateur retire in tears from the card-table, wounded by the rebuke of an impatient adept. A passionate desire for perfection in Contract has taken hold of the race. I heard one woman in a cold Puritan scorn denounce her partner as an empty popinjay, unworthy of the game. I understood then how it is that wives have shot husbands and husbands wives at American bridge tables.

The Yankee Electra
Everyone is still talking about Eugene O'Neill's play, "Morning Becomes Electra"—an awkward title, isn't it?

Tired, cynical old critics have been skipping for joy over this tragedy that has been produced with sombre splendour by the Theatre Guild. They are rhapsodising like small boys at their first pantomime. I have never seen such excitement over a new play.

The wonder grows when you realise "Morning Becomes Electra" is as long as three ordinary plays, has 14 acts, lasts from five in the afternoon till eleven at night, with an interval for dinner, strewn the stage with corpses, and sends every one home in the depths of gloom.

"Morning Becomes Electra" is bound to be seen elsewhere one of these days, and I will therefore keep off the grass of dramatic critics. I may observe, however, that O'Neill adapts the Greek theme of the vengeance of Orestes and Electra to a dour New England family at the time of the American Civil War. He is a brave man, deliberately challenging comparison with Aeschylus, Sophocles and Euripides.

The critics here have all praised the majestic sweep and cumulative power of his treatment. His characters are like gigantic figures hewn in granite.

I am intensely curious to know what London will make of the play. There will be a breach in Anglo-American relations if it is not a success there.

Oxford Accent.

There are constant complaints here about the spread of the Oxford accent, or what is fondly imagined to be that accent. Actors, teachers of elocution and visiting Englishmen are variously blamed.

"Our good American tongue is being ruined by the teaching of what is really a foreign language," complains a New York University professor.

Then there is a gentleman here called Dr. Brill, a psycho-analyst, who loves to hurl the awful word "Schizophrenic" at people he doesn't like. "The Oxford accent is merely an embellishment of plain speech used by people who feel inferior," he asserts. "They use it to divert attention from some other defect. An analysis of their mental conditions usually reveals Schizophrenia."

It was Dr. Brill, by the way, who called Abraham Lincoln a "schizoid manic personality." He is as fond of it as Humpty Dumpty in "Alice" was of the word impenetrability.

The Opera Claque.

Opera is one of those invalids who are always doomed but never die.

The season has just opened here with such a blaze of jewels and such an air of prosperity that one began to think the industrial depression was something happening in Mars.

That old-fashioned institution, the claque, is in full flower at the Metropolitan. This company of stalwart young men, mainly Italian, is hired at so much a head by singers to lend the applause. They are posted at strategic points of the house, and their rowdy, machine-like clapping breaks out at fixed intervals. The size of the claque on any given occasion and the strength of its efforts depend on the liberality of the singer.

Does the name Lily Pons convey anything to music-lovers? Not since Caruso discovered Rosa Ponselle in a music-hall has there been such a find as this French girl. Lily Pons is a miracle among Opera stars. She is young and lovely, slender and swan-like. They found her trilling like a lark in a small opera house in the South of France. She is a coloratura soprano with an enchanting kind of April freshness in her voice.

PHIPPS on the ### 3.648TH PROPOSAL.

"For the 3,648th time," said Mr. La Spada of New Jersey, "will you marry me?"

"The answer," replied Miss La Rosa, spinster of the parish, "is the 3,648th lemon. Furthermore, I'm gonna prosecute."

She prosecuted. The court proceedings revealed the gruesome fact that defendant had proposed to plaintiff daily for ten years. He got three months.

The charge on which he was indicted was "interfering with Miss La Rosa's peaceful pursuits." Judging by the fact that he had twice before been summoned and warned, his pursuit of Miss La Rosa would seem to have been far from peaceful.

Such devotion is rare. Still, three months must be considered lenient. I know several men who only proposed once and got a life sentence. Ten years, of course, is a long time for a man to go on proposing. In the last decade skirts have lengthened and shortened and waistlines have wandered about in the most irresponsible way. We have had midget golf and talking-films and Atlantic flights and income tax attitude records. In other words, there has been a lot to distract the attention.

He Went Quietly.

Take the case of my cousin Connie, who was married last week. It has taken her ten years to get Alfred to propose.

Connie pegged her claim at a dance. At least, she thought she did. But just as it looked as if she'd got Alfred groggy, Science enabled Alfred to hear Greta Garbo speak, and he seemed to revive. But Connie's nothing if not a stayer. She kept up a hot attack, and in Round Seven had Alfred hanging on to the ropes.

At that moment Duff Track Racing arrived, and Alfred, by grand defensive work, kept Connie at long range. But he was a tired man. Connie's superior ringcraft wore him down, until, after a last desperate burst of in-fighting, during which it seemed that even then the World Depression might save Alfred, his family threw in the towel.

It was what is known as a "quiet wedding." That is, Alfred went quietly.

COLLISION IN HARBOUR.

C. N. C. AND N. Y. K. IN LITIGATION.

COURSES IN A FOG.

Consolidated claims totalling $80,554, arising out of a collision between the s.s. Kiangsu (China Navigation Company) and the s.s. Tokooka Maru (Nippon Yusen Kaisha), formed the subject of an action in Admiralty Jurisdiction which commenced in the Supreme Court this morning, before the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp) and the Harbour Master (Hon. Commander G.F. Hole, R.N., Retired) as Assessor.

The ships came into collision on the morning of March 22, 1931, off Kowloon Dock Point. The China Navigation Company are claiming against the Nippon Yusen Kaisha for $40,000 damages and costs, while the Nippon Yusen Kaisha cross-claim for $40,554.

Mr. Eldon Potter, K. C., together with Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K. C., instructed by Mr. M. M. Watson, of Messrs. Johnson, Stokes and Master, is for plaintiff, while Mr. H. G. Sheldon, instructed by Mr. E. S. C. Brooks, of Messrs. Hastings, Denny and Howley, is for defendants.

No Dispute on Courses.

Mr. Potter said he did not think the facts would be greatly in dispute although there would be a dispute on at least one very material point, but so far as the respective courses of the ships were concerned he did not think there would be any dispute at all. Dealing with the facts, he continued that on the morning of March 22, the Kiangsu (Capt. Ritchie) was inward bound from Swatow. On approaching Hong-kong there was a threat of fog which passed, and at 7.35 a.m. the ship cleared Lyemun Pass. Fog again threatened and there was visibility of about half a mile, but, nevertheless, Capt. Ritchie put his engines at half-speed and set his course west-north-west for Kowloon Point.

That course and speed was maintained until 7.45 when there was fog ahead but visibility was about a quarter of a mile. It was most important to note that, at 7.45, Capt. Ritchie knew precisely where he was. It was not a case of a ship being lost in a fog, the Captain not knowing where he was. At that time he was north of Tai Koo Sugar Refinery, with the Channel Rock and the Refinery in line.

Ship in Fog.

Under those circumstances the distant signal of another ship was heard at 7.45 on the port bow, the whistle being one long blast, which obviously meant that the other ship was in fog.

Capt. Ritchie came to the conclusion, which, counsel submitted, was the only conclusion he could come to, that the other ship was outward-bound, which, in fact, it was. It was the Tokooka Maru leaving for Shanghai.

Mr. Potter remarked that if a jury were trying the case, and in days gone by it was not unusual for juries to decide questions of fact in Admiralty cases, if it were left to the jury to decide what Capt. Ritchie was entitled to assume—and he had to assume something in order to act—the only conclusion they could come to would be that the whistle was that of an outward-bound ship.

Under those circumstances Capt. Ritchie put his engines dead slow, altered his course to north-west by west, and blew one long blast, his object being to get over to the starboard side of the fairway. It would be established that it was the practice not only in these waters, but it was also required by the rules of the road and seaman's ship, that inward-bound and outward-bound ships must keep to the starboard side of the fairway.

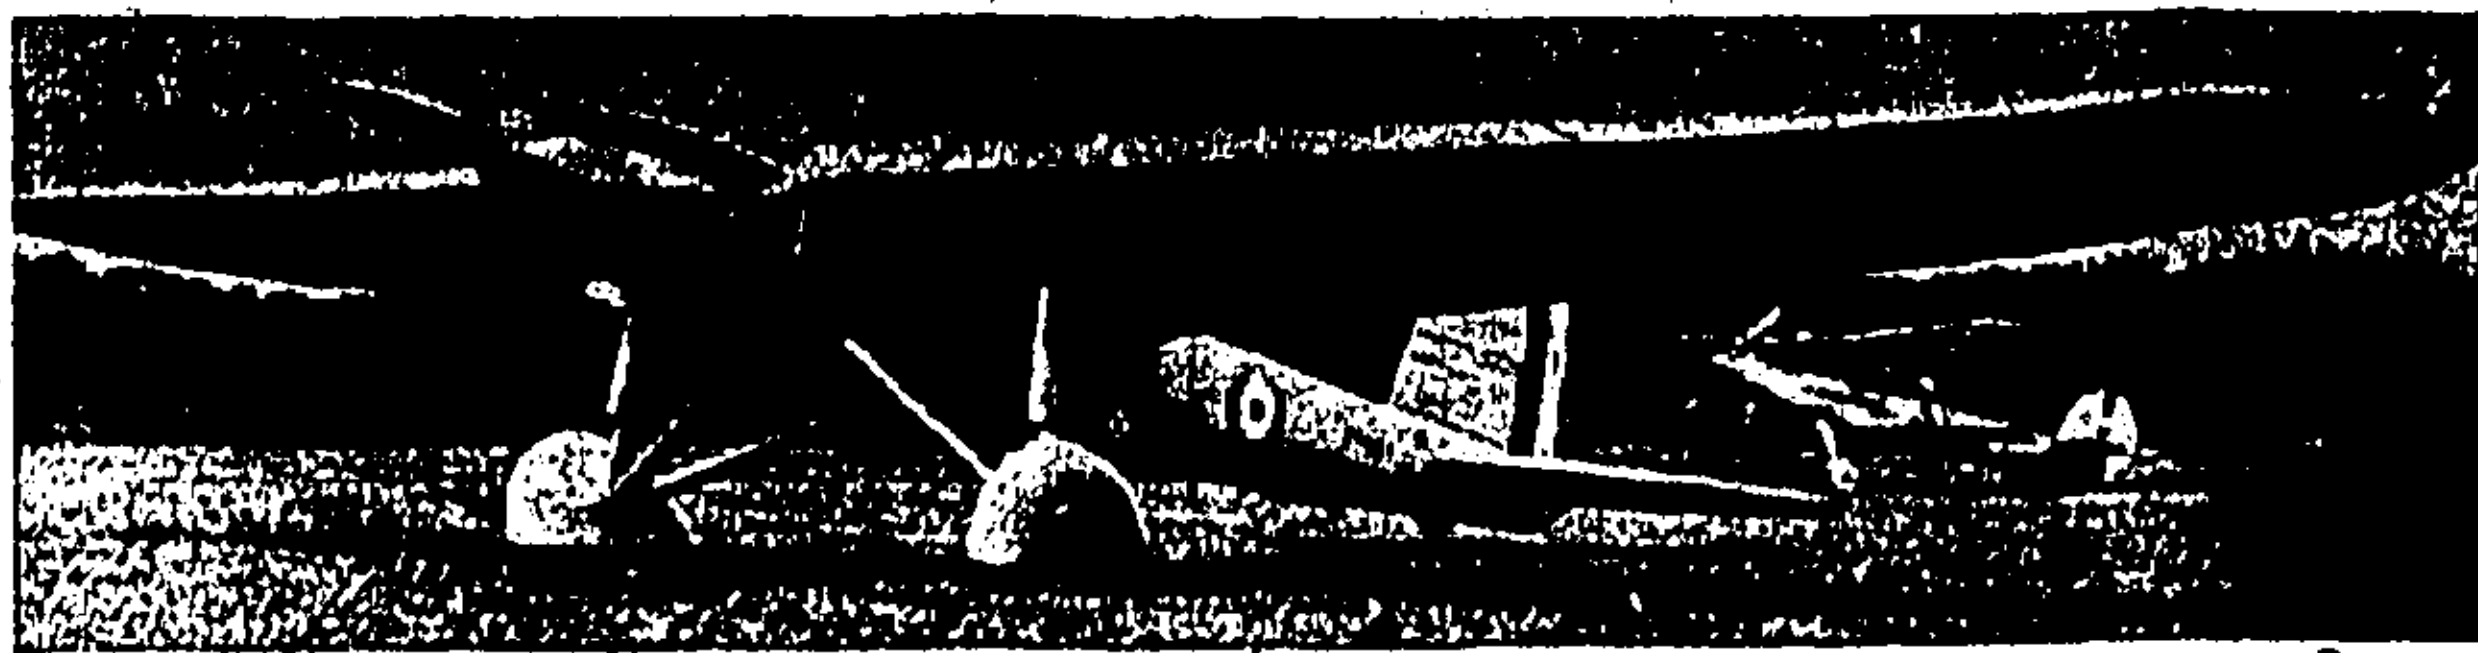

Capt. Ritchie carried on his course and speed. Various signals were still heard on the port bow, all of them indicating that she was an outward-bound ship, and none indicating that she was departing from the usual and proper practice of keeping to the starboard side of the fairway.

Little Warning.

At about 7.50 a.m., the Japanese ship appeared in sight through the fog at a distance of three to four hundred feet, according to the other side, and at a distance of between one to one and a half cables, according to the plaintiff. Mr. Potter stressed the point that, according to plaintiff's case, the Japanese vessel was about two points on the port bow and that she was under weigh, and had, in fact, considerable headway on her. In an effort to avert collision, Capt. Ritchie put his ship full speed ahead and ordered the helm hard starboard, in order to pivot his ship round the bows of the Tokooka Maru.

It was his submission that the manoeuvre would have been entirely successful if the Tokooka

FAIREY-NAPIER MONOPLANE COMES TO GRIEF.

The Fairey-Napier monoplane, which met with mishap at Saffron Walden yesterday, causing an indefinite postponement of the attack—the world's long distance flight record.

Maru had done what plaintiff said was the obvious thing to do, namely to have dropped both anchors. As it was the manoeuvre was nearly successful and undoubtedly had the effect of minimising the damage done.

Japanese Master's Report.

Dealing with a report made by the Captain of the Tokooka Maru to the Japanese Consul, Mr. Potter said that the ship left a Kowloon Wharf at 7.10 a.m., outward-bound for Shanghai. At 7.27 a.m. the ship passed the Clock Tower and steered the usual course for Lyemun Pass. At 7.43 a.m. North Point was south-east by south, three cables off. The Captain altered his course to north-east on account of the approach of a fog bank, and proceeded slowly, with careful attention to the surroundings and blowing the whistle according to the rules.

Counsel commented they would see later that the whole of the misfortune occurred because the Tokooka Maru was wholly and continually in the wrong from the time she altered course, because that alteration took her right across the fairway, "and we shall submit that nothing can justify that."

She continued on that course right up to the time of the collision. At 7.44 the engines were stopped on a ship's fog signals being heard on her starboard bow. At 7.48 her engines were put full speed astern and shortly afterwards the collision occurred.

Headway Point.

Mr. Potter referred to a paragraph in the Japanese Captain's report to the Consul, in which he said, with reference to just before the collision, "At that moment the headway of our steamer was nearly off," which, counsel submitted, supported plaintiff's contention that the Japanese ship had headway.

Counsel continued that acts of default alleged by plaintiff against the defendant Captain were that he was on the wrong side of the fairway, and that he steered a course across the fairway at a time when he must have known by the bearing of the Kiangsu's signals that an inward-bound ship was coming in.

On hearing the Kiangsu's signals the ship should have gone over to the starboard side of the fairway, or have gone astern, or have let go both anchors and gone astern, but she did not observe the cautions required by the practice of seamen.

"Nothing Short of Madness."

After remarking it was easy to slip into exaggerated language and be led on by the justice of one's own case and the injustice of the others, Mr. Potter said he felt he must say that the course taken by the Japanese ship was nothing short of madness, as it was imperilling not only his own ship but also every other inward-bound ship.

"It is a manoeuvre for which I cannot, although my friend Mr. Sheldon may have been more fortunate to find a single authority, because it involves going broad across the fairway in a thick fog."

After designating it as a suicidal policy, counsel argued that the Captain of the Tokooka Maru must have known he would run into fog before he had crossed the fairway, although plaintiff thought it likely that he was actually in fog when he altered his course.

He pursued that unjustified course, although he knew full well that an inward-bound ship was approaching, as it was beyond doubt that he had heard the Kiangsu's signals. Nevertheless he put himself in the position of a crossing ship.

The Man Who Knew.

Counsel emphasised that Capt. Ritchie could not possibly tell that the Tokooka Maru was a crossing ship, but the Japanese Captain knew. In addition he knew the position of the Kiangsu from her signals and that she was inward-bound. He was, therefore, the one man who knew precisely what the whole position was. Capt. Ritchie only knew that there was an outward-bound ship, and accordingly kept to the starboard side of the fairway, and assumed, as he was bound to, that the Japanese ship, outward-bound,

KOWLOON JUNIOR SCHOOL.

THE HEAD MISTRESS ON REAL EDUCATION.

PRIZES PRESENTED.

Amid the pleasant surroundings of the school grounds, the annual prize distribution of the Kowloon Junior School was held this morning, when Mrs. R. M. Dyer presented the awards to those who had gained successes during the year. There was a large attendance of parents and friends who listened with enjoyment to a programme of musical and dance items given by the children.

Mr. G. P. de Martin, Director of Education, was among those present, and after she had distributed the prizes, Mrs. Dyer was thanked for so doing by Mr. de Martin, while the children endorsed his remarks with rousing cheers.

Enjoyable Programme.

The grounds were gaily bedecked with national flags and bunting for the event, and, with the sun beaming down, the proceedings were thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

All the classes took part in the programme, which included carols, rhythmic marching, action songs, Swedish marching, a delightful little travel play, a costumed performance of the "Pied Piper of Hamelin," and the Garden Scene from "Alice in Wonderland."

Prize List.

Scholarship.—Central British School.—Doreen Brown. Mrs. Dyer's prizes for first place in classes 7, Doreen Brown; 8, Jeannie Felshaw; 9a, Brian Mohony; 9b, Bunty Dalgleish; 10a, Sally Hall and Jimmy Lindsay; 10b, Poppy Arnold. Prizes for second place in classes 7, Jack Stokes; 8, Sheena Taylor; 9a, Dorothy Tremmer; 9b, Robert Booth; 10a, Kathleen Macavish and Wilson Lang; 10b, June Barrett.

Prizes for third place in classes 7, Francis Crabbs; 8, Freddie Clemo; 9a, Frank Bishop; 9b, June Moss. Miss Cooper's prizes for Hard Work and Good Conduct.—Class 7, Pauline Baxter; Class 8, Jeannie Felshaw; Class 9a, Douglas Iffa; 9b, John Macfayden; 10a, Joyce Sturgeon; 10b, Eva Grady.

would do likewise. He had no idea and no indication that the Tokooka Maru was, in fact, crossing the fairway.

As the courses were not in dispute, that seemed final. If the Tokooka Maru had only ported a point at any period there would have been no collision but the ship did nothing. The Captain seemed to have been obsessed with the idea of getting across the fairway in a fog and did not deviate a hairs-breadth.

For the justification, counsel referred to a question put to Capt. Ritchie in cross-examination, that the Captain of the Japanese vessel was justified in altering his course north-east so that he might get across the fairway for the purpose of anchoring in what he believed was called the foreign man-of-war anchorage.

"No Justification."

Counsel submitted that that was no justification as he could have anchored quite safely on the starboard side of the fairway without having to go all the way across the fairway. Also there were buoys for anchoring purposes behind him where the weather was clear, whereas the fog was in front of him, and he could have gone to those buoys which could be seen.

Mr. Potter submitted the truth was that the Japanese Captain did not really consider the position at all, as if he considered it his duty to anchor he could easily have done so in the vicinity of where he was at 7.43 with perfect safety. The case is proceeding.

MR. CHURCHILL.

DEPORTED TO BE "DOING SPLENDIDLY."

London, Dec. 15.

Mr. Winston Churchill is doing "splendidly" according to a cable received this evening by his son in London from Mrs. Churchill, who is in New York.—Reuter.

Two Cracked Ribs.

The latest report states that Mr. Winston Churchill was in cheerful mood following a restful night.

His son, Randolph, received a cable reporting his father's condition as follows: Temperature 100.6, pulse normal; head scalp wound severe, two cracked ribs, slight pleural irritation, right side generally much bruised, progress satisfactory.—British Wireless.

ANNUAL REPORT.

The annual report, read by Miss M. Cooper, B.A., the Head Mistress, was as follows:

In January Miss Anderson was transferred here from Bellis Public School and Miss Smith went to the Peak School. Mrs. Jefford, of Victoria British School then did two weeks' temporary duty, while one of the Mistresses was ill. Miss Whitley returned from long leave in February. Miss Dyer, who had been our Gymnastic Mistress for several years, left to be married in July last, and we unite in wishing her every happiness.

Inspection.

The Director of Education and the Inspector of English Schools came round on several occasions, and saw the work in progress. In February, Dr. Minett, Medical Officer of Schools, inspected the new entrance, re-inspected the special cases, and gave valuable advice, when necessary, on the method of treatment to be adopted. Hitherto the parents have been notified by letter regarding defects that needed attention, but this time most of the pupils were present, and had a personal interview with Dr. Minett. This change of procedure is certain to have better results. In September she also inspected the older children and tested their sight.

Health.

The health of the school was good throughout the year, and I am fortunate in not having any epidemics to record.

During the hot months we adopted Summer hours, with beneficial results. This obviated the journey, to and from tiffin, in the hottest part of the day, which made the children too tired for any serious effort in the afternoon.

School Buildings.

The typhoon in July was responsible for a good deal of damage, and the white ants destroyed some of the woodwork. The P.W.D. have had the matter in hand, and most of the repairs have now been done.

General.

In July, Inspector Saunders, of the Kowloon Fire Brigade, supervised a fire-alarm, when the school was cleared in record time—48 seconds. He afterwards made some helpful suggestions as to the best method of conducting the practice. Notices have been sent to all parents regarding an increase in the school fees, as from January next.

Miss Swift took over Miss Dyer's work in September. She gives lessons here twice a week, and has weighed and measured all the children, and tabulated the results. Our not having a Drill Hall when large classes have to be taught, naturally limits her work. We hope that, before long, an Assembly and Drill Hall will be erected on the school grounds.

The concert, which is to follow, has not been specially prepared for this occasion, but is selected from what has been learnt in the ordinary school routine. Here I might say that I consider the so-called "Recreative subjects" as important as the three Rs. The child has to be fitted for life—not merely for earning a living. The whole trend of this mechanical age is for the leisure time to be increased, and we must see that the child's interests are as raised as possible. Drawing, Singing, Games, etc.—all have a necessary part to play in the development of the child.

We are all grateful to Mrs. Dyer for coming to give away the prizes to-day, and thank her for a liberal donation to our prize fund. We must also thank the Kowloon Dock Company for the use of their flags. Mr. Jenner for seeing that they were arranged as artistically, and the Committee of the Union Church for the use of chairs.

I cannot close without a word of appreciation to the Staff for their co-operation, and for the excellent work which they have done in the course of the year.

ROTARY CLUB ADDRESS.

CHINESE INFLUENCE IN HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

PIONEER WORK.

The development of Hawaii and the important part played by Chinese in that development was the subject of an interesting address which was delivered by Mr. William Kwai Fong Yap, at yesterday's meeting of the Hongkong Rotary Club, which was held in Messrs. Lane Crawford's Restaurant under the Chairmanship of the Hon. Mr. S. W. T'so.

Mr. Yap said, in part: In 1930, the total population of Chinese and American citizens of Chinese descent, according to the Federal census, was 27,179. In 1920, it was 23,607, and in 1910, the figures were 21,674, the low rate of increase being due to the fact that there had been no immigration for a generation. But this comparatively small population is surprisingly active in the affairs of the Territory. In almost every line of activity the people of Chinese blood are worthily represented. In the professions they are clergymen, lawyers, physicians, engineers, teachers, accountants, dentists, nurses etc. In business they are independently engaged in banking, general merchandising, meat and fruit packing, manufacturing, contracting, automobiles and, in fact, in almost all the commercial lines.

Employed in the public schools there are approximately 400 teachers of the race; four members of the faculty of the University of Hawaii. Prof. S. C. Lee, Dr. Kalfred Dip Lum, Tin Yuk Char and Miss Ruth L. T. Yap, are of Chinese descent. While, through the maintenance of Chinese language schools and other agencies, the Chinese community in Hawaii is preserving the culture of their fathers.

Practically all the younger and middle-aged residents here are American citizens and are loyal in the allegiance to America.

ROTARY CLUB ADDRESS.

only be cited that some of the fine business buildings, including one of the handsomest theatres of the Islands, as well as a number of the most distinguished private residences in this City, represent the Chinese mode of architecture. In support of the contention that the people of Chinese blood are loyal to the United States it may be recalled that during the World War a large number of young men of the race served in the army, many of them overseas, and that two Island Chinese boys were killed in action. (My own son, Alfred T. L. Yap, was the first Chinese-American soldier to go to France, crossing on the "Levintham" with 12,000 other American troops on the first trip of that ship as a transport.)

They have a deep interest in the welfare of China but their material and cultural cleavage to the United States is unquestioned. They own property in the islands assessed for taxation purposes at $18,000,000. They are, to a large extent, home-owners, and they are an integral part of the social and religious life of the Territory.

Educational Work.

Essentially home-loving, they take great pride in their houses and lands, and some of the most beautiful of Honolulu's homes and gardens are owned by Chinese. They are firm in their determination to give their children every possible educational advantage, and to this end they are willing to make great sacrifices. They have, I think, to a large degree, the spirit of hospitality, and one of their chief delights is in entertaining.

Many benevolent societies are supported and a number of important organizations for material and moral advancement are maintained, among them the United Chinese Society, Chinese Chamber of Commerce, Chinese Student Alliance, Chinese University Club, Chinese Civic Association and the Chinese Y.M.C.A.

Religious Activities.

The religious activities include active participation in the work of all the Christian churches of the Territory, Roman Catholic, Episcopalian and Evangelical Protestant, as members of the clergy, teachers and communicants. Among the first Chinese in the Islands to embrace Christianity was Siu Hung, or S. H. Aheong, as he was also known, who was converted in the early sixties.

In 1868 he was licensed by the Hawaiian Board of Missions to preach to the Chinese. He went to Hawaii and he proved to be an eloquent and untiring leader. Later, a school for the teaching of Christianity among the members of the race, was established by the Bethel Mission, of which Father Damon, of blessed memory, was chaplain, the late Mr. Duncombe being the principal, and a number of its students were baptized. They afterwards formed the nucleus of the Port Street Chinese Church. I was the first Chinese infant baptized in Hawaii.

Frank W. Damon, son of Father Damon, was Superintendent of the Chinese mission from 1881 until his death in 1916, and was greatly beloved by all who worked with him. The Port Street Chinese Church has a continuous service from 1881 until 1927. At the latter date the building was found to be too old and inadequate for the purpose and a site was purchased on South King Street, opposite McKinley High School, the land costing $75,000. The Church edifice proper represents an outlay of $60,000; the pipe organ $12,000; the auditorium $12,000; and the Parish House, Sunday School and apartment buildings $9,000, making a total of $168,000. Here was erected the present beautiful structure, following Chinese lines of architecture, which is not only admirably adapted to religious purposes but is also a distinct ornament to the City.

China's Political Affairs.

The Chinese community had long had and is now taking an increasing interest in political affairs here. It was my privilege to be the first Chinese to serve in an official government post, having been commissioned Inspector of Elections by Governor George R. Carter, in 1905. At the present time, while members of the race do not vote as a bloc, and are equally active in Republican and Democratic parties, they are making themselves felt in the government of the Territory.

Among the officials of Chinese blood may be mentioned Senators William H. Iken, Ernest Akina and A. Paul Low, Yew Chai, a former member of the House of Representatives, Philip Sing, member of the Board of Supervisors of the City and County of Honolulu, Dr. Oni Yen Chan, former member of the Board, and the late Mr. M. C. Amann, who was the first Chinese Supervisor.

Debt to Chinese.

It seems to me that Hawaii owes a considerable debt to the Chinese Chief Manager.

In the matter of developing her agricultural resources. They have, from the beginning, been pioneers in bringing unused lands into cultivation, and increasing the output of our soil. The early immigrants worked hard for little pay, making possible the creation of the great sugar industry.

A word should also be said of those who entered domestic employment and contributed, through their efforts as cooks and house servants, much to the fine home life of the Islands and their justly earned reputation for hospitality. All those humble workers had a part in building the present structure of the Territory, and by their frugality and thrift made the way easier for their descendants, who compose an outstanding group among our citizenry.

Peace Loving.

May I also add that the Chinese here have a notable record as peaceful, law-abiding members of the community, working effectively for the common good, and carrying their full share of the burdens and responsibilities which our present civilization imposes.

I thank you for your attention. (Applause).
 The Chairman, in calling upon Mr. M. B. Yung to thank the speaker on behalf of the Club, remarked he was sure they all knew that the Chinese were always industrious and had brought every land, wherever they went, to success. They were very pleased indeed to have such an interesting account of Chinese abroad.

Chinese in Foreign Countries.
 Mr. Yung said:—Mr. Yap has brought out how the Chinese, under favourable conditions, can develop into desirable citizens of foreign countries. The criticism has often been levelled against them as emigrants that they do not enter into the life of a foreign country and are of no benefit to that foreign country. Probably, in the early days, that was more or less the case, but, also, it was, perhaps, due to the treatment of the emigrants to those countries by the people of those countries.

Great Travellers.

I know the Chinese are great travellers. You find them scattered throughout every country in the world. In Cuba, where I spent some years in re-opening an old mine there, which was formerly worked by the English in 1860, there were records there that Chinese were in this mine.
 The same with Peru and also South America. You will find they were early emigrants and in those days their status was little better than that of slaves so that this address by Mr. Yap has been very enlightening and interesting in showing how they can develop under favourable conditions, and take their part in public and professional life.

The Chairman announced that next Tuesday's meeting would be a "closed" one, when members could bring up any matter for discussion or anything which they thought would improve the Club.

WILLIAMS' "HAT TRICK."

In the semi-final of the Small Units cricket competition the Royal Corps of Signals defeated the "D" Company Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders at Soekamp on Monday by 17 runs.
The Signals batted first and made 112 runs while the Argyll team was dismissed for 95, although Capt. Moir (40) and C.Q.M.S. McTavish (34) made a great effort to force a win.
Williams, the fast bowler, performed the "hat-trick" and claimed five wickets, all of which were bowled, for 38 runs.

THE COMMONS WAR RECORD.

LORD ULLSWATER'S TRIBUTE.

There stands at the head of Westminster Hall a memorial recording the names of Members of Parliament, of their sons, and of the staff of the House of Commons who fell in the Great War.

Two handsome memorial volumes containing a full biographical notice of all those whose names are so recorded have now, with the permission of the Speaker,
been deposited in the "Ayo" Lobby.

Numerous requests having been received from relatives and friends for copies of the work, an edition de luxe has been prepared in one volume. It is published at two shillings net by Elkin Mathews, and Marston, 54 Bloomsbury-street,
W.C. 1. The issue is limited to 750 copies for sale and will not be reprinted.

Lord Ullswater, who was Speaker during the War, has written an introduction. "The members," he states, "were of all political parties and creeds, but when the call of country came they forgot the one and set aside the other. . . . A splendid example to their contemporaries and their descendants. . . .
Their memorial is inscribed in the hearts of their fellow-members and acquaintances. Acce-peremus."

Details are given of the men thus commemorated, with, in most cases, tributes from the officer under whom each had served.
Peers of Parliament and officers of the House of Lords are commemorated in the Royal Gallery, where the War Memorial of that House is placed. Their names are included in this handsome volume.

A POUND OF ARMY SUGAR.*COOLIES FINED FOR THEFT.

A charge of stealing a pound of sugar belonging to the Royal Army Service Corps was brought against two carrying coolies before Mr. Grantham at the Central Police Court this morning.

The defendants admitted having taken the sugar, but remarked that they had no intention of stealing it. They had purchased some bread and wanted the sugar for the bread.

His Worship said that the defendants had been employed by the R.A.S.C. to carry rations to the barracks. At about 8.30 this morning they were carrying sugar with Private Clifford in charge, when the latter saw the first defendant holding a piece of paper and the second defendant sniffing sugar into it.

His worship fined each defendant $4 or seven days' hard labour.

CHIANG'S MESSAGE TO NATION.

ment has been subjected to severe criticism. I have submitted my resignation to the Central Government.

"I sincerely hope that a capable man will be appointed as my successor to effect immediate unification and to save the country in this time of crisis.

"Though I have now resigned all official posts, I shall carry out my share of the nation's work as a member of the Kuomintang Party and will not hesitate to surrender myself to the supreme sacrifice for the salvation of China, which was the instruction and the spirit of our Founder."

Beishan.

WEATHER REPORT.

The Royal Observatory reports that a strong anticyclone is central to the north of the Lower Yangtze Valley. Pressure gradients are steep over South China and the North China Sea.

Enquiries by the police have resulted in the identification of a young Chinese who was found wandering in Nathan Road on Monday and was taken to the Government Civil Hospital, suffering, it was believed, from loss of memory. Yesterday, the youth's mother called at the hospital, when it was revealed that he had been missed from his home at 28, Anny Street.

Messrs. A. S. Watson and Co., Ltd., are issuing to their customers a charming calendar. It bears a beautiful coloured study by Noel H. Leaver, entitled "An Old-Time Village."

UNEMPLOYMENT IN FRANCE.*URGENT RELIEF MEASURES IN PARLIAMENT.

Paris, Nov. 12. Parliament met to-day for its winter session in a somewhat chastened mind due to the aggravated crisis of unemployment. There are supposed now to be between 250,000 and 300,000 totally unemployed, though in the absence of statistics it is impossible to know for certain.

The partially unemployed must be far more. In any case the situation is becoming really serious, and presses most heavily in Paris, where there are a disproportionate number of large works, and consequently unemployment is keenly felt.

Unemployment formed the principal subject under discussion at the Council of Ministers, held this morning, and M. Laval stated in the Chamber that the Government would give it precedence over other subjects, including foreign policy.

The Prime Minister considers it urgent to put through Parliament further relief measures, the first of which will be a new form of State relief for men who have been out of employment for over 180 days, the present limit for the receipt of relief. It is also expected that severer measures will be taken to comb out foreign workmen, of whom there are supposed to be nearly one and a half million in France.

THE LEAGUE "A MENACE."*DR. SIMPSON'S VIEWS ON DISARMAMENT.

The Rev. Dr. Hubert L. Simpson, in a lunch-hour address on "Disarmament: Is it Possible?" at St. Edmund's, Lombard-street, said that disarmament was possible only when there was a decent beginning of obedience to the Will of God. It was not possible by the will of man.

Peace was the gift of God and not the wangle of men. Men would persist in believing that they could put an end to war among themselves. Disarmament was utterly impossible—the futile dream of an idle sentimentalist—unless certain conditions were fulfilled.

He could actually realise the League of Nations becoming a menace to the world by lulling it into a false sense of security. All the talking and so-called leaguering of nations was quite useless until the nations got right with God.

A further 48 hours' remand was granted by Mr. Grantham at the Central Police Court this morning in the case in which Chief Detective Inspector A. N. Reynolds is applying for an order for the repatriation to Canada of Mrs. Cheung Sui-noon, who is wanted there on a charge of theft of $800. This morning Mr. Horace Lo represented the fugitive.

GANDHI'S OBJECT UNCHANGED.*TO CONTINUE HIS WORK OF DESTRUCTION.

Rome, Dec. 15. "India, with her vast masses, can create a new civilisation, but this work of construction is for the future. To-day the whole Indian nation is called to a work of destruction—boycotting," said Mr. Gandhi in an interview by the Giornale D'Italia. He continued: "I return to India to continue the struggle against England, which will be, as heretofore, without violence."—Reuters' Special Service.

Another Outrage.

Patna, Dec. 15. The second outrage in India within twenty-four hours occurred to-day, when a bomb was thrown at the bungalow of Mr. A. B. Topla, the District Magistrate of Bhagalpur. Nobody was injured.

Another live bomb was discovered in the vicinity.—Reuters.

[A message published yesterday reported the murder of the District Magistrate of Tippera, who was shot dead by two Bengali women.]

XMAS PRESENTS FOR MEN.

Christmas Presents this Year are being selected on the "something useful" rather than merely ornamental principle.

COURT RESERVES DECISION.

IRREGULARITY OF MOTION ARGUED.

The Full Court composed of the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp) and Mr. Justice Lindsell reserved its decision in the motion moved by Mr. R. C. H. Lim for leave to appeal against a judgment delivered by the Puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Lindsell), when arguments were heard in connexion with the motion yesterday.

Originally the Ip Tuen Tait Shing Company, No. 147, Pui Ho Street, Shamshuipo, sued the Wong Kwai Kee Firm, No. 111, Yu Chau Street, Shamshuipo, for the sum of $925 for goods sold and delivered and materials supplied. Mr. Justice Lindsell gave judgment for plaintiff on the claim with costs.

An application, which Mr. Leo D'Almada Jr., said he regarded as a combination of extension of time and leave to appeal, was moved by appellant-defendant on Saturday morning.

Mr. R. C. H. Lim, instructed by Mr. P. H. Sin, was for appellant-defendant, while Mr. D'Almada, instructed by Mr. M. A. da Silva, was for respondent-plaintiff.

Mr. Lim, in replying to Mr. D'Almada's preliminary objection, cited a case whereby it was held that the appearance of counsel in court waived any objection of irregularity in notice of motion.

The Court, however, decided against the point, stating they consider it possible for a preliminary objection to be made without in any way waiving objection to irregularity in notice of motion.

Mr. Leo D'Almada then addressed the Court and said that it had two alternatives, either to dismiss the motion, or to adjourn it in order to give sufficient time for respondents to prepare their case.

He submitted that the present case was sufficiently grave for their Lordships to take the more drastic alternative of dismissing the motion, and that they must allow costs for the respondents both in connexion with their appearance in court that day and for any future service of motion, as he had shown that it was entirely the fault of the appellants that there had been irregularity not only in service of motion, but in service of affidavits supporting that motion.

After careful consideration, the Court reserved decision.

THE THIN END.

GERMAN STOCK EXCHANGES
MAY RE-OPEN.

Berlin, Dec. 15.
Regarded as the first step towards the reopening of the stock exchanges, a joint conference of the Reichsbank and the Government and Bourse officials has decided to permit members of the Bourse to meet at the stock exchange for an hour on Thursdays, although stock transactions are not permitted and quotations will not be fixed.—Reuter.

NANKING RIOT.

PEKING STUDENTS WRECK FOREIGN OFFICE.

GENERAL ASSAULTED.

Nanking, Dec. 15.
Shortly after eleven o'clock this morning 600 students from Peking rushed the Foreign Office compound. They gutted the offices of the Foreign Minister, Vice Minister, European Affairs, Asiatic Affairs, International Cable Sections, and seriously injured four employees.

The students then proceeded to the Central Party Headquarters, where a very important meeting of the Government and Party leaders was holding a conference in connexion with the resignation of General Chiang Kai-shek.

Police Guards Disarmed.

The building is situated in a large walled courtyard. The students rushed the court entrance, smashed windows and disarmed the police guards.

Retaining the police rifles, the students rushed across the courtyard towards the main building. The police at the main entrance fired into the air temporarily halting the students, who shouted their demands to see General Chiang Kai-shek.

General Chen Ming-shu, the noted Canton leader appeared to explain that Chiang Kai-shek was engaged in very important deliberations.

The students, enraged, attacked and slightly injured Chen Ming-shu.

They also opened fire with the police rifles on the police guarding the main entrance, who replied.

Student Injured.

More than thirty shots were fired. One student was injured. Up to the present three arrests have been made.

A hundred police reinforcements have arrived at the scene. The students still surround the building cutting off communications, but it is understood that the conference is continuing its deliberations.—Reuter.

Further Details.

Nanking, Inter.
Students attempted to carry off Gen. Chen Ming-shu and Dr. Tsai Yuan-pei, the President of the Control Yuan, who were eventually rescued by the police. Both were injured in the melee.

The auditorium at Party Headquarters was wrecked, the police disarmed and their rifles used by the students, who were firing aimlessly. Luckily nobody was wounded.

Finally the veteran statesman, Wu Chih-hui, Tsai Yuan-pei and Yu Yu-jen begged the students to leave, and the latter marched off shortly before 1 p.m.

Five students were arrested by the police, but released after cross-examination by the statesmen. Feeling in the capital is tense and pessimistic, though somewhat lessened by news that 30,000 Shanghai students have temporarily abandoned their plan to invade the capital.

Amazing Luck.

It is amazing there were no casualties from the firing, as more than a hundred shots were fired. A girl student from Peking figured prominently in to-day's riots. With a captured police

NO INFLATION.

CONTINUED IMPROVEMENT IN STERLING.

London, Dec. 15.
Sterling opened this morning with renewed firmness, the New York cable rate having risen from the overnight closing price of 3.43 3/4 to 3.46 1/4 dollars.

The French franc quotation rose from 87 1/2 to 88 3/16.

World Problems.

This morning's Cabinet meeting was curtailed to permit the Prime Minister, Mr. Baldwin, Sir John Simon, and most of the other Ministers to attend a national service of prayer for the world disarmament conference. The Archbishop of Canterbury preached and the service was broadcast. The Cabinet will meet again this afternoon. They held two councils yesterday, and will hold two tomorrow.

The purpose of these sessions is to enable the Ministers to make a thorough survey of policy on national and international problems.

The Fiduciary Issue.

The announcement made yesterday that the fiduciary issue, which was raised by £15,000,000 to £275,000,000 on August 1, is to remain at the existing figure, is welcomed in the financial columns of the press.

The Daily Telegraph says, "Any further increase to meet seasonal expansion in currency which usually reached £20,000,000 has been avoided, and the recent action on the Continent that Britain was about to launch out on inflation is demonstrated to be groundless."

The Daily News says, "The fact that no further increase in the demand is necessary over the Christmas period should have a reassuring effect abroad, where the opinion had been unnecessarily apprehensive of interpreting a possible further increase for Christmas currency purposes as suggestive of inflation. The fact that the present permission to maintain the previous £15,000,000 increase lasts until January 31 next, should finally dispense of these fears."—British Wireless.

rifle she charged at the head of a column of shouting students, who attacked the Party headquarters. Many students carried banners saying "Long live the Chinese Communist Party," "Workers and Peasants of the World, Unite." It is understood that a number of the students now active here are Communists.—Reuter.

SAD STORY TOLD IN COURT.

MOTHER FORCED TO SELL CHILD.

A harrowing story was related to Mr. Williams at the Central Police Court this morning, when two women and a man were charged with being concerned in an illegal transaction involving the sale and purchase of a minor, a girl 12 years of age, who is the daughter of one of the accused.

Inspector John Murphy, who prosecuted for the Secretariat of Chinese Affairs, stated that sickness and abject poverty had caused the widowed mother to sell the girl through a go-between who was not in custody. The two other accused were a young married woman living at 3, Wo Hop Street and a man who was her uncle. The former bought the girl after her relative had been approached by the go-between.

A sum of $120 changed hands, and it would be pleaded that the money represented a mortgage by which the girl was pledged until the mother could get well enough to work and redeem her. The S.C.A., stated Inspector Murphy, recognized the special circumstances in favour of the mother in the case, but at the same time it had to be stressed, for the benefit of others, that such transactions were highly undesirable, no matter what objects they served.

In this instance, the prosecution was taken up upon a complaint received by the Society for the Protection of Children and after the Attorney General had been consulted.

The mother of the girl was fined a nominal sum of $10 and cautioned, while the other two accused were each fined $75. Alternative charges of harbouring in their case were withdrawn.

LOCAL EDUCATION POLICY.

MR. KOTEWALL WANTS INQUIRY.

At to-morrow's meeting of the Legislative Council, the Hon. Mr. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., LL.D., will ask the following questions:—
With reference to the remark made by the Hon. Colonial Secretary at the meeting of the Legislative Council held on the 22nd October, 1931, that the Government would give serious consideration to my suggestion that a committee be appointed to consider the general education policy of the Government, will the Government state—

(1) Whether such a committee will be appointed; and
(2) If not, what step does the Government propose to take to give effect to the object in view?

IMPERSONATED ANOTHER MAN.

YOUNG JAPANESE SENT TO PRISON.

BOGUS PHONE CALL.

By representing himself as a person authorised by Mr. S. Hachiuma to secure certain small loans, a young Japanese, S. Tomonaga, aged 25, succeeded in obtaining small sums of money from two shop-keepers in Hennessy Road on Saturday last, but his deception was subsequently discovered and he was arrested.

When brought before Mr. Grant, at the Central Police Court this morning, two counts of obtaining money by false pretences were brought against the man. He was alleged to have obtained $3 from Mr. Miyamoto, of 115, Hennessy Road, by pretending that he had been sent by Mr. Hachiuma, while from Mr. Papa Seto, of 41 and 43,

CUTS IN PAY OF SHIPPING MEN.

NATIONAL BOARD IN ENGLAND AGREES.

London, Dec. 15.
The National Maritime Board has agreed to a reduction of ten per cent. in the pay of navigation and engineer officers of the Mercantile Marine with effect on January 31, 1932.

The proposal for a reduction in the pay of sailors and firemen and the catering staffs will be considered in January.—Reuter.

Hennessy Road, he secured a loan of $7 by telephoning and intimating that he was Mr. Hachiuma seeking a loan.

The defendant pleaded guilty to both counts. Detective Inspector Itzeskiy informed his Worship that at 3.30 p.m. on Saturday the defendant went to Mr. Miyamoto, and, representing himself as having been sent by Mr. Hachiuma, obtained a loan of $3. Four hours later he telephoned Mr. Papa Seto and, intimating that he was Mr. Hachiuma, said he had been purchasing records but had found he did not have sufficient money to pay for his purchases. He asked for a loan of $7 and suggested that he would send a messenger for the money. Mr. Seto agreed and the defendant called at the premises, where he was given the money.

It was subsequently discovered that Mr. Hachiuma had not made either of the two requests and the defendant was arrested. There was a list of 24 similar offences against the defendant, who had been obtaining money from Japanese nationals both in Hongkong and in Kowloon.

A MAGISTRATE'S FORMER PET.

DOG WHICH WAS NOT MUZZLED.

A dog formerly the property of a local Magistrate cost its present owner $5 this morning when Mr. Williams at the Central Police Court, imposed a fine on a summons taken out against Mr. E. O. Priestley for allowing the dog at large without a muzzle.

When the summons was called and his Worship was told that the dog was a little one, he smilingly remarked that it had formerly belonged to him, he having given it to Mr. Priestley.

Mr. H. Westlake was summoned before his Worship for allowing his dog to be at large without a muzzle on two separate occasions. On being fined $4 on each count, the defendant remarked that he had recently shot his dog.

On entering a plea of guilty to a summons accusing him of having allowed his dog to be at large without a muzzle, Mr. R. G. Gordon, of 354, The Peak, was fined $5.

VISIT OF CANON STREETER.

TALK ON SCIENCE AND RELIGION.

On Friday next, 18th inst., Canon Streeter, Fellow of Queen's College, Oxford, who has an international reputation as a lecturer and writer, will address a public meeting in the Cathedral Hall at 5.15 p.m. His subject will be "The Bearing on Religion of Recent Scientific Thought." The meeting is open to all.

Canon Streeter is on his way to England after a lecturing tour in Japan.

KING HAS A DAY'S SHOOTING.

MANY BIRDS FALL TO HIS GUN.

London, Dec. 15.
H.M. the King, accompanied by the Duke of York and the Duke of Gloucester, motored from Buckingham Palace to Windsor Great Park, where a party numbering six guns had a good day's shooting.
Many birds fell to the gun of the King, who is an expert shot.—British Wireless.

Continuing the officer said the defendant had been in the Colony for a period of twelve months but had once been sent away. The Japanese Consul refused to have anything to do with him and insisted that he be brought before the Court.

His Worship passed sentence of one month's hard labour on each charge.
